Got the February Blahs?

Even though the days are getting longer, winter can seem so long and it's hard not to be impacted by the lack of sunlight and cold. Generally January can be grey which invokes the January blues. So it's not surprising that in February we get the blahs.

What are some ways to beat the February blahs? Even though it's cold, bundle up and get out for a walk or even head to the gym. Exercise is a wonderful way to feel better. Not your thing? Stimulate your senses with some essential oils or bright colors. Or nurture your spirit by taking up a new hobby. But I offer this suggestion -- create a vision board for your next vacation or transition in life. And what better way to create that vision board than with your FOREVER® account. Create an album and start uploading and journaling. And watch your ideas come to life.

Dual Monitors

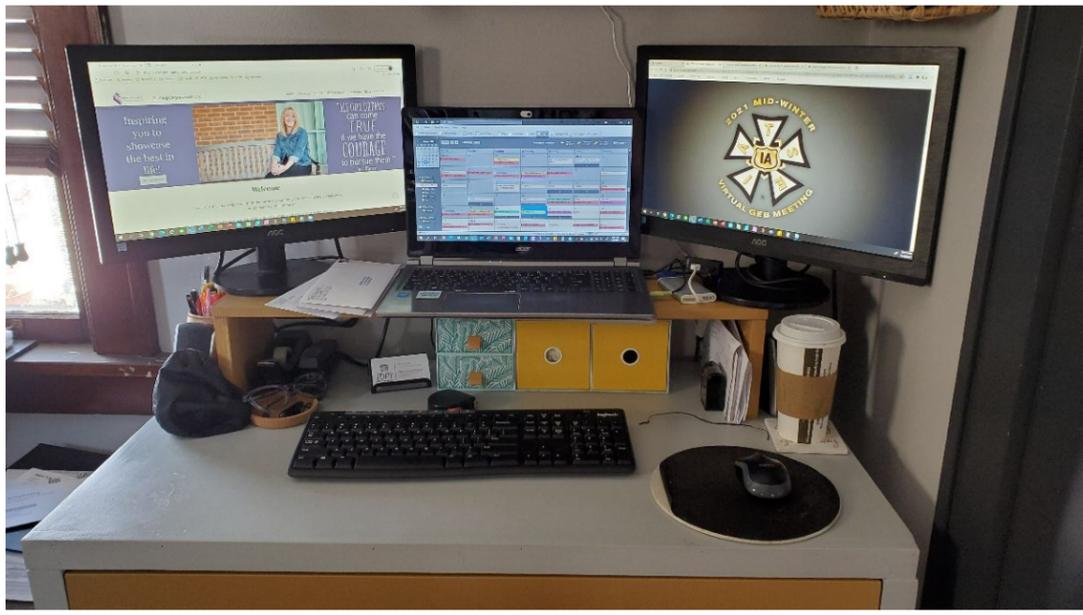

Dual monitors allow you to use two screens from a single computer. There are two options in dual monitors: 1) extend, 2) duplicate. To extend your monitors is to have two separate screens (i.e., Artisan® on one screen and FOREVER® on the other). To duplicate is to have the same view on both screens. This option can be beneficial when presenting.

Setup is a few easy steps:

- Connect the second monitor to a power source and your computer (USB, C, VGA, DVI).
- In your computer's display settings, choose either "Extend these displays or Duplicate this display" in the multiple displays window.
- Choose the monitor order and primary display (I always want my computer to be screen 1).

Check out Microsoft's support page for setup instructions for both Windows 10 and Windows 11.

And for anyone who really wants to expand, there is always the option of a third monitor; we'll talk more about that later.
